

RELENTLESS MOB LAW RULES HOUR IN LETCHER

ARMED MEN BREAK JAIL TUES. NIGHT

Slayer of Hershel Deaton Taken to Virginia Line, Hanged; Bullet-Ridden Body Soaked in Gasoline and Fired.

Mob law ruled Whitesburg for an hour Tuesday night, as 300 men rode into the sleeping city, overpowered the sheriff and took Leonard Wood, negro slayer of Hershel Deaton, from the jail and carried him to the Virginia-Kentucky state line and hanged him.

The crowd arrived in 50 automobiles at 11 o'clock, parked the cars in the edge of town, surrounded the jail and lost no time in beginning work. Sheriff M. T. Reynolds received a telephone message from Jenkins stating that something was about to happen, and he rushed to the jail and told Mrs. Manta Whitaker, jailer, to get her children out of the way. He left policeman Joe Stamper to guard while he went to get handcuffs. He expected to take the negro away before the mob arrived, but while he was in the office, Mr. Stamper rushed in and told him it was too late. He went to the door and tried to quiet the crowd, but they overpowered him and went about their business.

There was very little noise and confusion, for such a gathering. Occasionally an oath was heard, guns were everywhere, and a deadly serious air filled the crowd. "We've just got 300 men, but we'll use all of them or get him," one of the leaders was heard to say.

Men scaled the jailyard fence and tried to shoot the locks off the doors. Failing in this, they took hatch-saws and cut two bars in the upstairs door. Inside, they used hammers, saws and axes to break through four other doors before they reached the ergo.

The two negro women who were with Wood when he killed Deaton were taken but later turned loose and allowed to climb back over the fence into jail. They were fervent in their prayers and thanksgiving. Wood said little. When he heard the noise he told some of his companions in jail that the crowd was after him, and he dressed. When they took him, he said: "Oh, Lord, have mercy!" A trace chain was looped in a running noose around his neck, and he walked out.

A great shout went up when the negro appeared on the steps—the first real demonstration from the crowd. As the men followed the leaders up Court street and turned into Main, a hundred or more shots were fired.

NOW YOU TELL ONE

Beryl Mullins, manager of the Mullins' Department Store of this city, is having nice fresh ripe tomatoes out of his garden regularly now. Honest, that's what he said. Sure, there's a trick to it. He gathered the tomatoes while they were green, just before frost, and carefully wrapped them in tissue paper. Now they are ripening.

into the air in jubilation. After that, the crowd was orderly enough as cars rushed out of town toward the Virginia line. Several machines from here joined the throng, it is said.

On the mountain, at the place of the recent road celebration between Kentucky and Virginia, they hanged him and riddled his body with perhaps a thousand shots. Afterward they poured gasoline on him and burned his clothes off.

It is believed that the leaders and a great number of the participants in the lynching were from Virginia, former home of Hershel Deaton. Attorney Harry L. Moore is making investigation, and if evidence to this effect can be obtained, a protest will be made to the governor of that state against an armed force invading Kentucky and breaking into a jail.

Six prisoners escaped from the jail while the mob was here. About thirty remained in prison.

PENNY SEALS PROMOTE LIFE

Ten million Tuberculosis Christmas Seals, enough to provide every person in Kentucky with five seals, are being distributed throughout the state by the Kentucky Tuberculosis Association from Louisville and its sixty-five affiliated county agencies.

For the past twenty years these penny Christmas Seals, sold during December in every state, have been the means of helping stamp out tuberculosis and promoting good health. The success of the campaign has been due to the earnest work of thousands of citizens who give their services freely every year to help organize and conduct the seal sale in their communities and who later aid the state and county associations to carry on a definite program.

In Kentucky the Christmas Seal and its sponsors have done much to promote public health. They have helped get increase appropriations for sanatoria and a medical specialist in diagnosis who assisted in holding clinics for early discovery of tuberculosis, has resulted in greater interest in the cure and prevention of tuberculosis. The investigations made of health conditions and demonstration programs conducted by the staff workers in many counties have helped to bring about the employment of full-time health officers and public health nurses.

These seals are on sale in 65 counties in the state. Yours is one of them. You are urged to call upon your seal sale chairman, Mrs. Stephen Combs, Jr., and offer your services to help in this life-saving work by purchasing and aiding in the sale of seals to others.

STUART ROBINSON SCHOOL

Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Cooper, Jr., Master Murray Cooper and little Miss Florence Annie Cooper spent the month of November with relatives in North Carolina.

W. D. Lewis was called to his home in Kansas City, Mo., last week on account of the death of his father.

Miss Florence Gray leaves at once for a visit to her sister, Mrs. J. M. Phillips, of Carthage, N. C. She will remain until after the Christmas holidays.

Our annual clinic was held on Nov. 10-11. Dr. E. P. Guerrant of Winchester, was the physician in charge, and had to assist him Dr. Carl Grant, also of Winchester, and three nurses besides our regular nurse. Operations for adenoids and diseased tonsils were performed on twenty-nine students. All got along nicely.

On Thanksgiving morning, services were held in the chapel. Quite an interesting program being carried out. At the noon hour a bountiful dinner was served to which both faculty and pupils did full justice. It is our custom on each Thanksgiving Day to make an offering for the orphanage of Highland Institute, Guerrant, Ky. This is done in the dining room just before the mid-day meal begins and each table in a spirit of friendly rivalry vies with the others in trying to give the largest amount. The offering this year was $40.00. On the following Sunday the Sunday school was given an opportunity to make a contribution and this swelled the amount of our offering to $43.00. Two basket ball games were scheduled for Thanksgiving afternoon between boys' teams and one between the teachers and girls. However, a downpour of rain caused these to be postponed until Friday. The boys played a good game, but that in which most interest centered was the one between the teachers and girls. Much to their delight, the girls won 11 to 1.

SELLS SAWS

Oscar Lewis ca say that he made one sale that he did not enjoy. During the trouble here Tuesday night a couple of armed men came to his door, ordered him to dress and open his store to sell them some hack-saw blades. Not knowing what they meant to do, and seeing their determined actions and deadly weapons, he must have felt uncomfortable.

HOBART COMBS IS KILLED

Phillips is a Tennessee man, having come to this section two or three years ago. Combs had garnished Phillips' wages, and the trouble is supposed to have come up over this procedure. It is reported that Phillips called Combs to the door, shot him down and disappeared in the woods.

Combs leaves a wife and three children. He was a nephew of S. P. Combs, present Circuit Clerk of Letcher county, brother of Herman Combs, of this city, and the son of John W. Combs of Isom.

3 HELD IN KILLING OF MINE FOREMAN IN STATE

Whitesburg, Ky., Nov. 29.—Charged with the murder of Hershel Deaton, 35 years old mine foreman at the Elkhorn Coal Corporation at Fleming, this county, and son of J. A. Deaton, a coal operator at Bluefield, Va., Leonard Wood, 30, Susan Armistead, 25, and Anna Mary Emory, 25, negroes, were lodged in the Letcher county jail here Monday.

Reports that a mob was forming in Virginia to lynch the alleged slayers caused their removal from Jenkins, Ky., where they were arrested Monday, to the jail here, it was said. Deaton was returning to Fleming from his home at Coeburn, Va., when he was fatally wounded.

According to reports here, the negroes, mistaking Deaton's automobile for a taxicab on the road between Jenkins and Fleming Sunday night, hailed him.

It was said that the negroes became angry when Deaton informed them his car was a private one, and not a taxicab. Susan Armistead took a pistol from a pocketbook and handed it to Woods, who shot Deaton, according to reports. Both women were on the running board of Deaton's car when he was shot, it was said.—Louisville Times.

WHOOPEE!

Leonard Collins brought a turnip into the office yesterday which measured 20 inches in circumference, 7 inches "deep" and weighed 5 pounds. It was grown by W. S. Collins, father of Leonard. We have placed this turnip on exhibition in the Mountain Eagle window; and if sight will not convince some Doubting Thomases we might consider letting him weigh and measure it in our presence.

Mr. Collins also sent his son, at the same time, a 12-pound turkey and a 400-pound porker, but these gifts did not reach the Eagle office.

THE REIGN OF SHAME

Tuesday night the law of Letcher county was overriden by 500 men, who, in their fury, took a negro from the county jail and hanged him.

We do not hold any brief for the negro in his crime. He deserved death. If we had called upon to render jury service in his case, we would have stood out for a death sentence "till the stars grow old and the sun grows cold and the leaves of the Judgment Book unfold."

But there is no justification of mob law. There is no need for the lynching act in our state today. There is a great cry in the county that justice has too often been denied. Good citizens have been saying, on the streets of Whitesburg, that they upheld the grim act of Tuesday night.

But one wrong never justifies another. There is plenty of time to act after the law breaks down—not before it has been given a chance. A few days ago two negroes were hanged in Madisonville for a more atrocious crime than this in our county. A few years ago in the little town of Glasgow hundreds of men gathered to hear the verdict in a guilty murder case as ever. At 12 o'clock. In both instances the citizens were ready to do their work if the law broke down. But it did not. And the state was saved the shame of mob rule. Not long ago we stood in the crowded jailyard in Lexington and watched the officers send a negro to eternity by way of the noose. Kentucky laws, despite all that has been said, are not lax in such cases. Justice predominates.

Therefore, as we see it, the act which was committed Tuesday night was inexcusable. We have no feeling against the men who took the negro. Doubtless many of them were our friends. Certainly they were friends of Hershel Deaton. But the act itself is a blot on the record of Letcher county and the state of Kentucky. That tense hour, from 11 till 12 o'clock, was a reign of shame; and it is the sincere prayer of this newspaper that it may never be repeated in the history of our people.

ON KEEPING APPOINTMENTS

Recently the writer failed to keep an appointment with a ministerial friend. In a discussion which followed a few days later the preacher remarked with a smile that, since I had failed to keep my appointment with him, I should write an editorial on keeping appointments.

"But," I quickly replied, "this time I had a good excuse."

The more I think about that remark, the greater comes the conviction that all of us, who fail to do what we say we will, have excuses which are good ones—in our own minds. And with it comes the conviction that it is almost excusable to break a promise.

Our lives are made up of failures and excuses, for it is only by repeated failing and catching again that we walk. Likewise the man who has never failed at anything has never done anything. But the man who makes the best progress offers the fewest excuses for his many failures. We are weak, vacillating creatures at best; and every excuse that we offer which does have the ring of sincerity in it—and excuses seldom have that—tends to weaken our moral fibre.

THE DIVIDED HOUSE

Kentucky will be, for the next four years, a divided house. Governor Flem D. Sampson will represent the Republican party, while practically all of the minor offices will be filled by Democrats.

The winner in the race for lieutenant governor remains somewhat in doubt, but the other victors are unquestioned.

This is unfortunate. A man, to accomplish the greatest thing in any job, must have cooperation. Governor Sampson may be tough of a diplomat to obtain teamwork in his ranks, but he would find it. Nobody but a genius could persuade members of the Democratic and Republican parties to agree on any subject. The members of both groups refuse to agree among themselves.

So it looks, from the present view, as if we were doomed to an administration of wrangling, with the possibility of a deadlock. Not a pleasant picture, not the picture we should like to see of a progressive state.

We sincerely hope, this time, that we are wrong.

ANOTHER YOUNGER GENERATION

It came to the writer Saturday night, with a distinct shock, that he was no longer of the so-called "younger generation." He and three college classmates sat in the mellow light of an open fire and discussed with learned words the weighty problems of the world. There was much about which to talk, for the four had been separated almost two years.

But it had never dawned upon this group that they were being relegated to the shades of the conservative middle-aged set. It was a kid sister of one of the members burst in upon the meeting in the few small hours of the morning and raised a protest over excuses which are good ones—in our own minds. And with it comes the conviction that it is almost excusable to break a promise.

"Did it ever occur to you that we no longer belong to the younger generation?" Ed demanded. "There's another younger generation crowding us off the stage."

And so it is. Probably we of a half-dozen years ago who brought such a howl of protest from our parents will within the next dozen years likewise rise in shocked horror at the frivolity and seeming wickedness of another younger set. Man in his three score and ten years passes through all of the stages of existence from savagery to civilization. Youth in all times has been an age of revolt. The weight of years brings submission and quietude to the normal life.

The great tragedy lies in the fact that occasionally a soul is caught in the whirlpool of debauchery in youth and fails to make an escape. These are the wrecks that lie strewn along the pathway to the peaceful grave.

But as a whole, no "younger generation" is bad except in the minds of those who forget their own youth. Each of the four who raised shocked eyebrows at the late arrival of the kid Saturday night had been found tippling in at even later hours than this, and with as little appreciable damage to character. But for an instant we forgot. And so it goes. A generation grows up, shocks its parents, passes on and is in turn shocked by its off-spring. And all the time the human race progresses slowly toward a higher plane of existence.

RED CROSS ADVANCES IN HEALTH PROTECTION

Record for Progress Is Made in Protecting People of Vast Flooded Section.

Record health protective activities marked the year's service of the American Red Cross in this field. The outstanding health accomplishment was the successful conclusion of the emergency health program launched as part of the relief work in the Mississippi Valley flood. In co-operation with State and Federal health agencies, the Red Cross successfully conducted a campaign designed to prevent epidemics as a result of flood conditions.

Thousands were immunized against typhoid and smallpox, preventive measures against malaria were undertaken, and as the flood receded an intensive clean-up program was set in motion to purify water supplies, provide sanitary surroundings of rural communities and complete other health protective steps.

Beside the emergency work, the Red Cross Public Health Nursing Service developed about 100 new community nursing and health services in certain instances. Every State, Alaska, the Hawaiian Islands, the Philippines, Porto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, had Red Cross health classes which showed a large increase.

One contribution to national health achieving a growing recognition is the nutrition instruction service, through which thousands of adults and school children are learning the proper food for health and the fundamentals of correct food habits in relation to health. Classes include housewives, school children, mothers, policewomen, women having charge of homes and institutions, business and students in universities and colleges.

Besides these direct services for better health, the Red Cross maintains a reserve of nurses more than 45,000. These nurses are available for disaster relief service, epidemics and other serious emergencies, and are on call for duty with the Army, Navy and the Veterans' Bureau.

Red Cross health services are increasing in scope. It is pointed out, in calling attention to the forthcoming summer of new members in the Red Cross ranks, through which support all Red Cross activities are made possible. The enrollment will take place from November 15 to 24.

Junior Red Cross Army of 6,000,000 in Schools

Members of the Junior Red Cross proved a new capacity for service during the Mississippi flood, according to reports to Red Cross National Headquarters covering their work. This group of enthusiastic school children responded spontaneously and generously to the needs of flood victims. An indication of the importance of this help is contained in the report that Junior Red Crosses contributed $7,500 to the relief fund.

Junior Red Cross members aided in reconstruction work in the Midwest tornado several years ago, after the destruction of the Red Cross among the people in the Mississippi Valley.

Junior Red Cross has 5,322,557 members, an increase of 273,229 in the last year.

More than a million of the Junior Red Cross membership is distributed in the Philippines, Hawaii, Guam, Porto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Alaska, and includes Indian and Eskimo children. The membership of the Junior Red Cross in the United States, and similar groups abroad, children and over the world are being brought into closer understanding by international correspondence carried on by classes in the schools.

The Juniors at present have nearly twice the membership of the senior organization, but in the forthcoming membership enrollment of the Red Cross, from November 15 to 24, the goal of the adult membership is 5,000,000.

Foreign Calls for Help Answered by Red Cross

Despite the unusual requirements of relief in 77 distress stricken United States, the people of the country, through the American Red Cross, extended relief to sufferers in 20 distresses in foreign lands.

These included devastating portions of Cuba, Santo Domingo, Porto Rico, the Isle of Pines, the Bahamas, and other islands in the group; fires in Haiti and Porto Rico, floods in Mexico and Jugoslavia, earthquakes in Japan, the Azores Islands, Armenia and Albania, and refugees relief operations in Bulgaria, Syria and the Middle East.

During the Eleventh Annual Roll Call November 15 to 24, the American Red Cross will seek a membership of 5,000,000 to keep its disaster relief and emergency services constantly ready for any call.

Stubborn Coughs Quickly Stopped This New Way

It is often surprising how the most persistent, hacking cough that not only robs you of strength and sleep, but often leads to more serious trouble, yields quickly to a simple but wonderfully effective treatment.

This treatment is based on the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery for Coughs. You take just one teaspoonful at bed time and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. The prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals soreness and irritation, but it quickly removes the phlegm and congestion which are the real cause of night coughing. So with the cause removed, coughing stops quickly, your sleep is undisturbed, and the entire cough condition soon disappears.

Dr. King's New Discovery is for coughs, chest colds, sore throat, hoarseness, bronchitis, spasmodic croup, etc. Fine for children as well as grown-ups—no harmful drugs. Economical, too, as the dose is only one teaspoonful. At all good druggists. Ask for

Bad Color (liver trouble)

"OCCASIONALLY I am troubled with spells of constipation and inactive liver," says Mrs. John L. Ponce, Broadway, Va. "I always use Theodor's Black-Draught when I feel a spell of this kind coming on, for it gives me a hot headache. My color gets sallow at times. I get real yellow, showing that the trouble comes from the liver."
"I have found Black-Draught to be the finest kind of a remedy for this. I take Black-Draught and make a tea out of it, and take it, along in small doses for several days. I have never found anything that served me so well."

"Since I have known about Black-Draught, I have not suffered nearly so much with headache, caused from indigestion. If I find my tongue is coated, and I wake up with a bad taste in my mouth, I know I have been eating indigestibly, and I immediately resort to Black-Draught to straighten me out."

Organized Women Demand Correction of National Scandal

By JOHN DICKINSON SHERMAN

TENS OF thousands of us, as members of the great American radio audience, doubtless heard recently the pleasing, convincing voice of a woman in the national capital making this startling introduction to her brief outline of a nationwide movement to correct conditions everywhere admitted to constitute a national scandal, if not a national menace:

"I want to ask your interest for five minutes in the subject of providing a uniform law concerning marriage and divorce. Let us assume that we are all interested in marriage. Some of us are interested in divorce. Most of us are also interested in permanent marriages and in universally legal marriages. We will perhaps be surprised to learn that owing to the hodge-podge of laws now existing in the several states you may under certain circumstances be simultaneously an adulterer and a bigamist at the same time, depending upon which side of an imaginary state boundary line you may be standing."

This woman at Washington with the pleasing and convincing voice was Mrs. Edward Franklin White of Indianapolis, author of the bill now before congress supplementing this proposed amendment to the Constitution:

"The congress has been asked to make laws which shall be uniform throughout the United States on marriage and divorce, the legitimation of children and the care of custody of children."

Mrs. White, former deputy attorney general of Indiana and later elected to the Indiana Supreme court, is first vice president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. That powerful body of organized women under the leadership of its president, Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, is actively supporting the proposed amendment and has the co-operation of a number of organizations of nation-wide membership. Mrs. White in her radio address, said in part:

Each of the 48 states has made its own laws and no two of the states are alike in the required qualifications for marriage or in the grounds for divorce, except that all prohibit bigamy and incestuous marriages and make them criminal. Marriages of certain classes are prohibited in some states, not prohibited in others and made criminal in still others. Two people legally married in one state could be jailed in another state because of that state's laws.

One state grants no divorce; others grant divorce on one ground and still others up to 14 grounds. But citizens of every state get divorce in some state. In some states they try to punish this evasion of the law. Persons legally divorced in one state to which they had removed have married, and upon return to their original state are charged with bigamy and their children made illegitimate. Persons divorced by interlocutory decree who have legally married in another state before the decree became absolute have been arrested as adulterers upon their return to their own state.

We are always citizens of the United States, and we are always citizens of the state in which we live. Do you not believe that a marriage valid in one state should be valid in every other state? A divorce granted in one state should be recognized in every other state. The only way to reach a solution of this marriage mess is by a federal law.

The principal aim of a proposed federal law is not to reform the marriage laws but to uniform them and to include in the federal law only such matters as are essential to uniformity. For it is the purpose of the proposed federal law to make marriage more difficult. Marriage should be made easy for the fit and hard for the unfit.

It seems to me that this civil state of citizens who move from state to state should be as much a matter of interstate commerce as the transportation of freight. But it seems not and that congress does not have the present power to legislate on the subject. So it will be necessary to adopt an amendment to the Constitution to empower congress to pass such a law.

Mrs. White's concise radio address was coincident with a meeting of the board of directors of the General Federation of the national headquarters and followed a call by a General Federation delegation at the White House to enlist the interest of President Coolidge in that body's campaign for uniform marriage and divorce laws.

The delegation was led by Mrs. Sherman and was accompanied by Senator Arthur Capper of Kansas and Representative Ernest W. Gibson of Vermont, sponsors for the amendment and bills in the senate and house. The accompanying photograph shows a number of the delegation at the White House (left to right): Mrs. Florence C. Klose, Abraham, Washington, vice chairman of the department of legislation; Mrs. Florence C. Klose,

AFTER A CALL UPON THE PRESIDENT

Mrs. Edward Franklin White, Indianapolis, first vice president; Mrs. John Dickinson Sherman, Johnston, Pa., second vice president; Mrs. Robert J. Burdette, Los Angeles, vice chairman of international relations; Mrs. Henry A. Clayton, Norwalk, Vt.; Mrs. Aaron Schloss, Berkeley, Cal.

Accompanying to members of the delegation, President Coolidge said he was interested in anything that would prevent disintegration in the homes of the nation and agreed to give the measure all the support he could. Mrs. White in addressing the President for the delegation said in part:

The great increase in the ratio of divorce in this country is commonly cited without taking into consideration that the laxity of marriage laws and the conflict of laws between states are responsible for a great number of these divorces.

The fact, however, that it is a woman's movement, or that women are more interested in it than men, our interest in this is our interest in the integrity of the family—made up of one man and one woman, and the offspring of that union. The government itself is intensely interested in the proper making of that man and woman, because the family is the unit of government. It has the strongest of all interests—self-preservation.

The need for this uniform law has been recognized by newspapers in their editorials, by congressmen and senators, by the public at large. There has been no adequate objection offered to the idea, except that it should be a matter for state legislation.

Neither Mrs. Sherman nor Senator Capper looks upon divorce as an evil institution. Both, however, emphasize the fact that the abuse of divorce has become an evil. The General Federation bills—which, of course, must await the passage and ratification of the amendment—are based upon the proposition that to eliminate the hasty or ill-considered marriage is to go far toward eliminating the abuse of divorce. The marriage bill therefore contains the following provisions:

At least two weeks must elapse, except in certain emergencies, between the application for license and the marriage. Ten days before the marriage both parties must file a statement of their financial condition. There is no legal bar to the union. The marriage license clerk must make public all applications, which may be challenged in court by any person believing the statement to be false or insufficient. The court may sustain or deny these objections at its discretion and may take cognizance of emergencies. The age eligibility for marriage is placed at eighteen for men and sixteen for women. Parental consent must be obtained for men under twenty-one and for women under eighteen.

For absolute divorce five causes are named: Adultery, except when with the consent of the party seeking the divorce or when the party seeking the divorce has been guilty of the same offense. Cruel and inhuman treatment. Abandonment or failure to provide for a period of one year or more. incurable insanity. Conviction of an infamous crime.

As to the much vexed question of alimony a provision reads: "The court shall make such decree for alimony, whether asked for in the petition or on default, as the circumstances of the case shall render just and proper."

The adoption of the amendment and the enactment of uniform marriage and divorce laws would deprive the states of their present power to regulate marriage and divorce within their boundaries. The bills, however, do not set up a new federal bureau, but leave the enforcement of the new laws entirely to the states.

It's your money they want. If they seem frantic to be kind to you it's only because they're Judge, from the number of your chins and the quality of your companion's jewelry, that you are too rich, too timid or too inebriated to notice when you get your change that it is ten shillings short.

If nobody makes the smallest effort to win your favor you may be perfectly sure that you are being sized up as a "rump" case and later the two."—From "The Glutton's Mirror," by William Calne.

The Waiters—and You Remember when you enter a restaurant that nobody is going to love you for yourself alone. You are the waiters' meat, not their only child.

"I believe young people do not give enough consideration to the seriousness of marriage," says Mrs. Sherman. "They know divorce is easy and they dash headlong into marriage relations. Of course we cannot expect children to live just as their fathers and mothers did. The new generation has jumped far ahead and I believe that where this has meant a fault it has been where parents have neglected their duty in the home. The causes for divorce enumerated seem to me to be the proper causes. I have not made a study of alimony, but I do not believe it should be granted in all divorces. I have heard of women who made an actual business of marrying and of obtaining divorces for alimony. It is when a woman is honestly making an effort to live respectably and to keep her family together that she should secure all the alimony that she possibly can."

"Divorce is increasing so rapidly," says Senator Capper, "that there is now one divorce to less than seven marriages. The main cause is the ease with which the immature and unfit may marry. We have forty-nine varieties of marriage laws. Seventeen states fix no marriageable age. In nine of these common law ages of twelve for girls and fourteen for boys have been recognized. There are forty-eight varieties of divorce laws. From no divorce in South Carolina to fourteen grounds for divorce in New Hampshire the scale runs. While the majority of the states recognize the divorce laws of other states, there are at least eight which do not recognize them unconditionally. The continual nullifying of second marriages and the illegitimizing of children is a process without reason and wisdom."

The hodge-podge of marriage and divorce is admitted to be a national scandal and a national menace. Yet there will be organized and persistent opposition to the amendment and bill from various sources from various motives—some "reformers" as well as from "standpatters."

There will be opposition, for instance, from those opposed to further centralization of power in the federal government. These people favor uniform marriage and divorce laws, but insist that these must come through enactment of a model law by the several state legislatures.

There will also be opposition from those who view marriage as a political issue of "it and war." Nebraska passed a political issue of "it and war." Nebraska passed a political issue of "it and war." Nebraska passed a political issue of "it and war."

Sauce For The Goose

THERE is almost no meat or poultry that is not improved by the accompaniment of a tart fruit sauce. Chief of these is applesauce. Without it the goose would lose much of its popularity. As for pork—deprived of applesauce, it would be like a story without a point.

Provided it is made of rather sour apples, applesauce is excellent with duck, chicken or even turkey. It is the handiest possible sauce for the housewife, since it is now put up in ready-to-serve form, thus saving her much time and labor. She may also get her duck, chicken or turkey out of a can, as well as most of the staple meats.

The soft-smoothness of the commercially prepared applesauce is a great asset. Sugar or lemon juice may be added according to taste. Otherwise, it is ready for the table or to use in making various dainty desserts.

Baked Apple-Pudding is made by mixing a can of applesauce with two beaten eggs and bread-crumbs which have been moistened with melted butter. If applesauce is very tart, add sufficient brown sugar to sweeten. Bake until brown.

Apple Roll-Mix and sift 2 cups flour, 4 teaspoons baking-powder and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Work in 2 tablespoons butter and add 3/4 cup milk, mixing with knife. Roll out dough on floured board, cover with canned applesauce and roll dough like jelly roll. Steam one hour and twenty minutes in covered vessel. Serve with vanilla sauce.

Feeding The Children

THE "old woman who lived in a shoe" had no monopoly on the vexatious problems connected with large families. There are plenty of women today, both old and young, who have so many children they don't know what to do. Even with one child, and living in a much more commodious domicile than a shoe, a mother has worries enough.

But the modern mother has one advantage over the ancient shoe-dweller of Mother Goose fame. The feeding problem is solved for her by ready-to-serve foods. The well-read woman knows that she can rely upon canned foods, not only for convenience and economy, but for their highly nutritive qualities.

She buys canned corn for dinner because it is rich in sugar, starch and fat, which supply the body with heat and energy. She selects peas and stringless beans because of their protein and vitamin content. Canned quinnich her children must have because, besides being rich in vitamins, it serves as a tonic to strengthen the digestive tract. She orders plenty of canned tomatoes because they contain both fruit and vegetable acids, mineral salts and all the essential vitamins. Prepared spaghetti, blended with cheese and tomato sauce, and thus containing practically all the body-building elements, is included in her purchases. Baked beans and a variety of canned and fresh fruits she will also want.

It is not likely that children fed on these healthful foods will ever drive their mother to the extreme measure adopted by the old woman who lived in a shoe.

The King of Vegetables

THE flaming red "love-apple"—to call the tomato by its early name—comes rightly by its royal coloring. It is the king of vegetables by "divine right" of superiority in food value.

The tomato is unique. It is two different kinds of food in one, possessing the peculiar acidity and succulence of fruit, while at the same time being rich in vegetable properties. Most important of all, it contains in remarkable proportions all the vitamins necessary to human growth and development. It is an excellent stimulant to the appetite.

So do not have any more upon the tomato, that, if it were obtainable only in summer, we would miss it miserably the rest of the year. We could find no substitute for the flavor it adds to soups and meats,

A Dollar Dinner for Four

A dinner costing only $1.00 and which will serve four people, may be had from the following menu:

Buttered Stringless Beans on Toast Cream of Corn Soup Escalloped Tomatoes
Apple Snow Bread and Butter Coffee

INGREDIENTS for the soup, would be one can of corn costing at the rate of 2 for 25 cents, or 2 pounds, would cost approximately 4 cents. The Apple Snow is made from one can of applesauce costing at the rate of 2 for 25 cents, or 13 cents apiece, at special sales, and a pint of milk costing 9 cents. Two cans of the stringless beans would be needed, at the rate of 2 for 25 cents at special sales. One can of tomatoes—of which there is frequently a sale of 3 cans for 25 cents—may be estimated as costing 8 cents. A loaf of bread costing 8 cents at some stores and 6 cents at the cheaper stores will supply the toast and also the bread for the meal.

Enough coffee for four people, bought at an average rate of 40 cents at the rate of 2 for 25 cents, or 2 pounds, would cost approximately 4 cents. The Apple Snow is made from one can of applesauce costing at the rate of 2 for 25 cents, or 13 cents apiece, at special sales, and the whole of 3 eggs, at present costing approximately 3 3/4 cents each, or about 11 cents for the three. These stringless beans on toast and escalloped tomatoes are both excellent substitutes for meat, and together supply a substantial main course.

Costs More to Build—Is Worth More—Yet Sells for Less

If any other manufacturer endeavored to produce a car similar to the Ford according to the high standards of the Ford Motor Company, it would be impossible to offer it at anything like the present low Ford prices.

If the Ford Motor Company would substitute an ordinary design for the basic Ford features, Ford cars could be produced and sold for less than the present Ford prices. Yet by so doing, Ford simplicity, durability and reliability would fall below the standard insisted upon by the Ford Motor Company.

Just think! 13,000,000 model T Ford cars have been produced since 1908—almost as many automobiles as were built by all other manufacturers combined. In 1925, almost 2,000,000 Ford cars and trucks were built and sold—and plans for 1926 call for the production of even more than 2,000,000.

It was the superiority of Ford design in 1908 that established Ford leadership. It is this same Ford design, improved but basically unchanged, that is continuing to make the Ford car the outstanding leader among all automobiles.

8,549,511 Working Women in United States

Atlanta, Ga.—"My system was weak and run-down, and I was tired. I was this way for five years or more. I read your advertisement in the papers and I decided to try your medicine, the Vegetable Compound, but I did not begin to take it regularly until after I was married. I got so much good from it that I feel fine and have gained in weight. I work in a brown shop, but my work is not so hard on me now, and I keep my own house, and work my garden, too. You don't need to wait long to get results. Tanlac goes right to the seat of trouble. In a day or so you note a vast difference in your condition. You have a new vitality, sleep better at night and the color begins to creep back into your washed-out cheeks.

Every day's delay means unnecessary suffering. For Tanlac starts to clean up and line up the system right away. And

ATORNEY GENERAL of half a dozen Great Lakes states, a former secretary of war, and a former solicitor general of the United States argued for four hours in a final prelude to the United States Supreme court of the controversy over Chicago's right to divert Lake Michigan water for sanitary and waterway purposes.

Arranged against Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, was the chief of counsel for Wisconsin, Minnesota, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Indiana, Michigan, and New York, seeking an injunction to prevent further diversion, was James M. Beck, a former solicitor general of the United States, assisted by Hugh Johnson, assistant attorney general of Illinois, and Daniel N. Kirby, attorney general for Missouri.

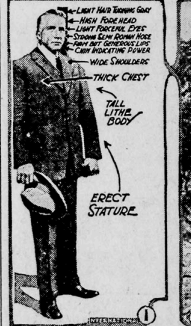

Mr. Baker's contention before the court was in brief, that the War Department was not authorized to permit the diversion of lake water for any purpose—that such authority was vested alone in congress.

Mr. Beck pointed out that as a solicitor general he had upheld the right of former Secretary of War Weeks to issue the diversion permit of March 5, 1925, and that he had represented the government in earlier litigation which resulted in a decision affirming the War department's right to issue such permits.

NEWS REVIEW OF CURRENT EVENTS

Waterways Seems to Be One of Liveliest Issues Before American People.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
WATERWAYS seems to be one of the liveliest issues of the week before the American people. The day has seen several striking demonstrations of importance of the subject and of the popular interest.

Possibly the first importance was Secretary of Commerce Hoover's address at Chicago outlining an inland waterway system that would work wonders for the Middle West—and therefore for the whole nation. Within five years, he predicted, the Mississippi system would be functioning from Chicago to New Orleans and from Pittsburgh to Kansas City. Congress and the President are agreed upon the necessary appropriations.

Secretary Hoover considered the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway even more valuable. Two problems, he said, are involved: the deepening of the channel to the sea and the stabilization of lake levels. The lakes are from two to three feet lower than they were seven years ago. Some thing less than one-fourth of the fall he attributed to the diversion of water at Chicago and the rest to the climatic cycle. Whatever the cause, the remedy, he said, lay in the construction of control works above Niagara falls.

"Our United States engineers tell us—and we have the best engineers in the world—that they can restore the level of the lakes by curtailing the outflow at Niagara until they fill up," Mr. Hoover explained. "They tell us that proportionately to the gigantic flow it is a small job, so doing we will have equalized the vagaries of climate and stabilized the vagaries of emotion."

Mr. Baker's contention before the court was in brief, that the War Department was not authorized to permit the diversion of lake water for any purpose—that such authority was vested alone in congress.

Mr. Beck pointed out that as a solicitor general he had upheld the right of former Secretary of War Weeks to issue the diversion permit of March 5, 1925, and that he had represented the government in earlier litigation which resulted in a decision affirming the War department's right to issue such permits.

LETTERS written by Secretary of War Davis and Secretary of the Navy Wilbur praising the military advantages of the proposed all-American canal between Lake Ontario and the Hudson river stirred up two furries in Washington.

"You can't criticize the secretary of war without this board," said Brig. Gen. Edgar Johnson to Representative John R. Sommers (Rep., Mich.), at the waterways hearing in the Munitions building. Of course a red-hot war started, with talk of free speech, the rights of congress, etc. Finally the contestants, and even General Johnson agreed that opponents should be heard later on the military phases of the all-American project. This ended the first flurry.

The congressman from Detroit came to the waterways hearing to fight for the canal between Lake Ontario and the Hudson river stirred up two furries in Washington.

the ground that the taxpayers of Michigan were opposed to it.

THE second flurry was occasioned by the statement in the Davis letter that "from the military standpoint it is essential that waterways connecting the Great Lakes with the Atlantic seaboard shall be entirely within American territory." Senator Leonard (Rep., Wis.), Senator Willis (Rep., Ohio), former Governor Harding of Iowa, and Charles F. Craig of the St. Lawrence Tidewater association hurried to the White House in protest. They charged that Davis was attempting to induce War department engineers who are now studying the project into recommending the all-American canal, rather than the St. Lawrence route. From the White House they went to the War department, where Secretary Davis assured them he would give the St. Lawrence route a fair deal.

C. LORNE CAMPBELL, a Canadian engineer, laid before the gathering of leading Chicagoans his plan for a "Sixth Great Lake" which he asserted would restore the levels of the Great Lakes, provide for Chicago's water diversion and develop immense hydroelectric power. He would fill up a large natural basin in Ontario by damming the Albany and Ogoki rivers, which now run into Hudson bay. This new lake would be twice the size of Lake Ontario. A surplus of 15,000 cubic feet a minute—twice Chicago's diversion from Lake Michigan—would be delivered into Lake Superior through a short canal to Lake Nipigon, that lake and the Nipigon river. Mr. Campbell says the cost is not excessive and the project would benefit both America and Canada, as well as the entire Great Lakes region. Chicago's water-diversion problem would be solved. Harbor and river dredging would be saved through restored water levels. Ontario would get immense water power at the Nipigon river and a market for the pulp-wood forest in the basin of the new lake. The carrying capacity of lake car-piers would be restored. Increased water flow would aid both waterway produce and lumber. Lakes-St. Lawrence and Great Lakes-Gulf. Altogether, Mr. Campbell thinks, the benefits would be so large that the interests benefited might well afford to pay the cost of construction on some sort of pro rata basis.

BRIG. GEN. SMEDLEY D. BUTLER, U. S. Army, stated that the charges of drunkenness and conduct unbecoming an officer against Col. Alexander Williams of the San Diego marine base, General Butler took command of the San Diego base upon being released from the job of "moping up" Philadelphia, relieving Colonel Williams.

General Butler's action followed a dinner given at Colonel Williams' home in Coronado in General Butler's company. Cocktails were served, and served at the dinner, which was attended by a number of officers of the marine corps and their wives. The charges against Colonel Williams, however, were based on a party which was held later at the home of a friend of those at the dinner having been invited.

General Butler and some other officers declared in the affidavits that Colonel Williams was intoxicated. Other affidavits declared he was not. Colonel Williams was placed under technical arrest at the hotel and was summarily removed from command of the Fourth regiment of marines, to which command he reverted when General Butler relieved him as commander of the marine base recently. Presumably the Navy department in Washington will order a court martial.

THE first telephone was patented by Alexander Graham Bell at Washington, March 7, 1876. Sunday, the Atlantic cable was laid from New York to New London and chatted for four hours by radio telephone across the Atlantic. The cable, the news, weather, prohibition and short skirts.

The demonstration was staged for engineers and newspaper men by the American Telephone and Telegraph company. Radio, the telephone, and the cable, the news, weather, prohibition and short skirts.

England. The British voices were thrown 2,000 miles from Rugby to Houston, Maine. The wave length was 1,770 meters. Only one conversation can be conducted on the same line. The achievement was the two-way conversation.

While the American and British commissioners were drawing up the treaty of Chicago to the War of 1812 the British sent a secret expedition, supposedly invisible, with the purpose of exploring New Orleans after peace had been declared and hanging onto the whole Mississippi valley. In fact Gen. Andrew Jackson most astonishingly defeated the British fifteen days after the signing of the treaty. The first Atlantic cable was laid in 1858. Now comes the radio telephone across the Atlantic. Man is mastering time and distance. What next—Mars?

PREMIER ARISTIDE BRIAND of France has formed a new cabinet and is back in Geneva. That is about all that can be said definitely at this writing of the mudslide into which the cabinet has fallen. The enlargement of the council has dumped the League of Nations.

The engineering and experience station of the Kansas State Agricultural college is working on a problem to determine the wind resistance encountered by the average automobile on the public highways. This experiment is under the direction of Prof. L. E. Conrad, head of the civil engineering department, is only one of a number of investigations being carried out by the national highway research board in an effort to discover the best type of road for existing roads.

The college has already completed a large share of its work, as tests have been made on 15 different types of bodies on various cars. The experiments are being carried on in an open field wide and 50 feet long, 12 feet wide and 10 feet high. A motor-driven fan is placed in a position to create a maximum velocity of 50 miles per hour. An automobile is driven into the tunnel and is attached to a swinging platform to which are attached spring balances for measuring the resistance of the car's area against the wind pressure.

The date of the fair is interesting. It has been found that a car traveling at 10 miles per hour develops wind resistance of only five pounds per square inch, while at 40 miles per hour the total resistance is 20 pounds, or 10 times greater than the first speed with only quadruple speed.

Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, was made permanent chairman of a directing committee of representatives from over a hundred organizations. There are five vice chairmen: Mrs. John A. Sherman, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs; Frank G. Winsor, president of the National Labor Manufacturers association; Will Dill, president of the Tank Water League; W. B. Greeley, United States forester; George D. Pratt, president of the American Forestry association.

The senate concluded a controversy which had been continued in executive session at several different times by approving, 48 to 20, the nomination of Charles W. Hunt of Iowa as a member of the federal trade commission. Mr. Hunt had been serving under a recess appointment since the expiration of his original term last year. He has been considered the "dirty farmer" member of the commission, having been named by President Coolidge to fill out the unexpired Marck term.

IMPROVEMENT in the condition of Col. John C. Coolidge, father of the President, was reported. Dr. Albert W. Cron, the colonel's physician, said the patient was very comfortable and there was no immediate cause for alarm. For several days Colonel Coolidge, ill for several months and with a long history of a heart affection, had had considerable pain, Dr. Cron reported, and his appetite had been poor. The doctor's treatment has been to remove his discomfort and his father improved. The doctor is it is announced he is ready to start for the bedside of the federal father at Plymouth, Vt., the moment he receives word of an alarming condition of the father.

ROAD BUILDING

MORE AUTOS THAN ROADS CAN HANDLE

Construction of paved roads is lagging farther and farther behind the production of automobiles and trucks. An interesting comparison may be drawn between the output of motor vehicles and the roads paved during the recent years by replacing the mileage of the highways built by the number of cars that can use them at the same time without too great congestion.

On each mile of two-track road built there is room for 200 automobiles, according to figures recently cited by Dean A. N. Johnson of the University of Maryland, in a paper before the American Society of Civil Engineers at New York. But with this number there can be no passing around slower-moving vehicles, and all cars must move at a uniform speed.

In this paper Dean Johnson gave fifty to sixty feet as the minimum spacing between cars—or sixty to seventy-five feet, including the length of the car itself—when the cars were moving freely at twenty-five to thirty miles an hour on a main highway. Reducing this somewhat to be conservative, 100 cars can be accommodated in use on each side of a mile, or 5200 feet of pavement 18 feet wide, so long as they keep in line and all run at the same rate.

On this basis last year only one-third of the 3,550,000 motor vehicles produced could be used at one time on the concrete roads built during the year. While this is a better showing proportionately, than in 1919, when less than one-sixth of the new cars could be so accommodated, in the actual number of surplus cars the congestion is growing. In 1914 the difference between those made during the year and those that could be accommodated by the concrete roads built was only 350,000; in 1919 it was 1,000,000, while in 1920 it had risen to 2,430,000.

FROM JEREMIAH

Well, some time has elapsed since you have heard from this neck of the woods. Knowing that in the common course of things spring is near at hand our people are peeping about their plow-stocks, bull-tongues and other fancy farming tools so as to be able to lay their hands on them when this promised event comes. March has spread a carpet of beautiful white all over backwoods and some of the boys are out chasing rabbits and trucking foxes. The long hang-on of winter makes us believe a good crop season is ahead. When the writer was a little girl way back 'fore the war, we never thought of winter breaking until after April 15, and there were of crops reminds me of that dirty little old bean bug. I think it came along to affect us because we are so wicked. When I think now (thoughtless and wicked the names of our people are in this day I do not wonder that plagues and disasters come. I think God thinks His people in quiet, decent righteousness and cures them in wickedness and evils.
Not a frog has yet ventured to creep out of its hole so far as we have heard and raise a spring russ. He'll get brave enough soon.

Well, baby news is about all worth telling just now. There's
Mr. and Mrs. Henry Back, Mr. and Mrs. Ora Candill, Mr. and Mrs. Prentice Candill rejoice over the coming of fine little girl's —not a plow-boy in the bunch.
Look for me to come over when the mud dries up. I want to see how you make the Eagle.

THEY STARTED WITH US
Some of those who are our best customers today started with us years ago as young men.
They grew up with us. We saw them save money, a little at a time, until, with the help we gave them, they were able to start businesses of their own.
Today they are successful men, and they can attribute their suc-
